DOWNTOWN DEVELOPER TO SPEND $2500 FOR MAY SHOW PURCHASES

Works of art to be selected from entries in the 1967 May Show by the jurors for this competition at The Cleveland Museum of Art will occupy focal points in the entrance and elevator lobbies of The Chesterfield, the $11,000,000, twenty-story apartment now being erected at Chester Avenue and Twelfth Street in Erieview.

A special purchase fund of $2,500 has been established by developers of The Chesterfield, according to Sherman E. Lee, Director of the Museum. He said that awards of $250.00 each will be presented to the individuals whose works are chosen by the judges as best suited for this purpose. These amounts will be over and above the prices set by the artists.

The range of works to be considered will include decorative textile hangings, as well as paintings, sculpture and ceramics. Any unexpended portion of the purchase fund will be set aside and added to a comparable fund for awards and purchases in 1968. The 1968 purchases will be primarily for garden sculpture suitable for display in The Chesterfield's landscaped plaza.
